

Top health industry leaders have rolled out a way to ease health-care spending by an estimated $2 trillion over the next decade. What do you think of the plan?

The president's recently announced "agreement" with "health-care providers" was not without his standard fanfare and flourish. This agreement is purported to reduce the annual increase in health-care costs by 1.5%.

Never mind that this agreement has no specific ways that this will be achieved.

The greater deception here is that the president's health-care plan will cost an extra $600 billion or so at a minimum, so again he is "saving" us a tiny amount of the greatly increased cost that he is proposing. Which in the end means we are saving nothing and spending more.
